Thursday, September 10, 2020 | 12pm ET / 9am PT | 5pm ET / 2pm PT

Now more than ever, social media has become something that many of us rely on for engagement with others. In this webinar, professionals in the field of suicidology, Bart Andrews, PhD, and Becky Stoll, LCSW, share their understandings of the intersection of technology and suicidality. Carolyn Jones, PhD, will moderate the discussion, which will delve into the impact of social media on suicidality and suicide prevention. The conversation also will highlight a new technology-based tool for clinical transition services and continuity of care for individuals at risk for a suicide-related crisis. Join this important dialogue on September 10, 2020, as we recognize World Suicide Prevention Day.
